

Thursday, July 13, the day was dedicated to an in-depth study of the chapter theme by Professor Lorenzo Biagi, philosopher and professor at IUSVE (VE) and subsequent sharing among the capitulars.

The insights were many, topical, concrete, challenging and were offered to the assembly in a simple, sometimes sympathetic way, provoking much reflection and sharing.

Then, on July 14 and 15, the capitulars discussed at length "in the working tables" (the assembly is divided into eight subgroups of six people, seated for work at the same table) and then in mixed groups according to topics of interest, to identify the orientations that will be entrusted to the new General Council.

We are immersed in the work, serene and confident.

From today we are immersed in prayer and discernment for the election of the superior general and her council.

United in prayer, we greet you.

The next communication will be on the occasion of the elections on July 17 and 18.
